Human Nature.

"You know," said the collector rather plaintively, "you said that you would pay me if I came today."

"Well," answered Mr. Bildeau, "you must bear in mind that human nature is human nature. The best of us some times say things that we are sorry for."

General Chaffee's Way of Giving a Recruit Confidence.

A youth of 18 who was in the trenches at El Caney carrying a gun was so badly frightened under fire that he went flat on his face and was roundly kicked by his companions. General Chaffee came along and called to him, "Well, you're a fine soldier!" Then he looked at the boyish face of the kid, and his face softened. "I suppose you can't help it," he said. "It ain't so much your fault. I'd like to get hold of the fellow that took you into the army."

By and by he put his hand on the boy's shoulder. "There ain't so much danger as you think for," said the general. "Now, you get up and take your gun and fight, and I'll stand here by you."

The woman who is weak, nervous, tired and exhausted; who has a poor and variable appetite and no strength or nerve; who suffers from pains and aches, dragging down and burning sensations; and who recognizes herself in that she has become irritable, cross, blue and despondent, is in almost every case suffering from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity.

Thousands of women suffer in this way and do not recognize the cause, or if they do understand their condition, neglect it rather than submit to the obnoxious examinations and local treatment insisted upon by the average physician. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine for women who suffer in this way. It does away with the necessity for these trying ordeals, and may be used in the privacy of the home. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned, and makes them strong, vigorous and healthy. It banishes the discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It transforms weak, nervous, petulant invalids into happy wives and mothers. Thousands of women have testified, over their own signatures, to this fact. The Favorite Prescription may be procured from any good medicine dealer. Any woman who will write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., may have the advice of an eminent and skillful specialist without charge.

Mrs. Cora M. McLaurin, of Rockport, Copiah Co., Miss., writes: "I had displacement and inflammation of the uterus. I was under the treatment of our family physician for a long time, but received no benefit. I had falling of internal organs with ulceration and enlargement. I commenced using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' Pleasant Pellets and 'Extract of Smart-Weed.' From the first day I began to improve, and in a short time I was able to do all my household work. It had not been for your medicines I would have been dead long ago."

Stomach and liver troubles with sluggish action of the bowels are cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tawny of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and oaks were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial author, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whitier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whitier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini—Castellanza—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That's a one for me," he said. "My name like that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellanza,' and he say: 'Oh, helladum, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up you be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter."

Washington Post.

Human Nature.

"You know," said the collector rather plaintively, "you said that you would pay me if I came today."

"Well," answered Mr. Bildeau, "you must bear in mind that human nature is human nature. The best of us some times say things that we are sorry for."

General Chaffee's Way of Giving a Recruit Confidence.

A youth of 18 who was in the trenches at El Caney carrying a gun was so badly frightened under fire that he went flat on his face and was roundly kicked by his companions. General Chaffee came along and called to him, "Well, you're a fine soldier!" Then he looked at the boyish face of the kid, and his face softened. "I suppose you can't help it," he said. "It ain't so much your fault. I'd like to get hold of the fellow that took you into the army."

By and by he put his hand on the boy's shoulder. "There ain't so much danger as you think for," said the general. "Now, you get up and take your gun and fight, and I'll stand here by you."

"That's pretty high," said the general. "Keep cool and try it again."

In three minutes that kid was fighting like a veteran and cool as a cucumber, and when he saw it the general started on.

"You're all right now, my boy," he said. "You'll make a good soldier."

"God bless you, sir," said the youngster. "You saved me from worse than death." And he was pretty close to crying when he said it.

After a while the order came to retire from the trench, and soldiers had to collar that kid and haul him away by the neck to get him to retreat with his company. And at that he'd got a bullet through the fleshy part of his shoulder an hour before. In the rest of the fights there wasn't a better soldier in the company.—Chicago Journal.

Theatrical "Props."

Props comprise all the portable articles required in a play. Guns and pistols—which too often fail to go off at the critical moment—are props; leaves of bread, fowls, fruit, all made of a rough paper mache, are also props. We may also include those wondrous gill goblets, only seen on the stage, which make such a nonmetallic thud when they fall and bounce upon the boards, as among the achievements of the property man.

But it is at pantomime time that that individual is at his busiest. Big masks and make believe sausages and vegetables, without which no pantomime would be complete, are mingled with fairy wands, garlands of artificial flowers, basket work frames for the accommodation of giants and other articles too numerous to mention.

How the right things are forthcoming at the right moment is one of those mysteries only known to property men. Had one of these useful members of the theatrical world the ability and inclination to write a book what an entertaining volume could he turn out!—Chambers' Journal.

Original if Not Accurate.

This, says The Scottish Leader, is a genuine extract from a schoolboy's recent "Essay on Nelson":

"Oh! Harding, kiss me again," were the beautiful words of a heroic mortal who won a grate battle with one eye and a wooden leg. Before the bloody contest this motto was uttered by him. "The queen expects every man to do his duty." When he died the queen met him in a boat and he went to St. Paul's and was buried. This is a marvelous lesson to me and all schoolboys. Do your duty to your parsons and masters and then even with a single leg you can say, "with this simple thing I will do my duty." As Nelson himself said "Even though you are only man you can do your duty."

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

How His Phase of Lunacy Was Developed During a Trial.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to a story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little southern town, and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney."

"The old fellow was perfectly honest and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cogitating my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend. 'Just slip in that question and see.'"

"So at the tail end of the cross examination I panned, as if struck by an afterthought, and said, 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. Well, sir, I continued, 'about how high can you build?'—I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!'"

"In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TWO OF THEM.

Private O'Mara's Tart Retort to His Unaccommodating Colonel.

Here is a story told of Patrick O'Mara, a private in the Ninth regulars: Not long ago he went to the colonel, who was a severe disciplinarian, for a two weeks' leave of absence.

"Well," said the colonel, "what do you want a two weeks' furlough for?"

Patrick answered, "Me wife is very sick, and the children are not well, and if ye didn't mind she would like to have me home for a few weeks to give her a bit of assistance."

The colonel eyed him for a few minutes and said: "Patrick, I might grant your request, but I got a letter from your wife this morning saying that she didn't want you home; that you were a nuisance and raised the devil whenever you were there. She hopes I won't let you have any more furloughs."

"That settles it, I suppose I can't get the furlough then?" said Pat.

"No, I'm afraid not, Patrick. It wouldn't be well for me to do so under the circumstances."

It was Patrick's turn now to eye the colonel as he started for the door. Stopping suddenly, he said:

"Colonel, can I say something to ye?"

"Certainly, Patrick. What is it?"

"You won't get mad, colonel, if I say it?"

"Certainly not, Patrick. What is it?"

"I want to say there are two splendid liars in this room, and I'm one of them. I was never married in me life!"—New York Tribune.

BRYAN ON IMPERIALISM.

The following is an extract from a speech delivered in Denver, Colo., by Hon. W. J. Bryan defining the difference between expansion and imperialism:

My friends, I am opposed to wars of conquest, opposed to them not only because they inflict injury upon us but because my religion teaches me that the man who does wrong hurts himself as much as he hurts the man against whom he does the wrong.

You cannot change the policy of this nation on this subject without making a great change, which is no little matter. It is no small thing and before you decide to do it I want you to think what you are doing. Whenever you advocate wars of conquest you adopt the principle of reason. We have been taught to believe that governments come up from the people. Adopt the idea of force and you are told that governments come down to the people from superior force. Why, they tell us that this expansion means progress. I refuse to allow them to call it expansion. It is not expansion. It is imperialism, and, my friends, in this contest we are having the same difficulty that we had in 1898, about terms. Our opponents would not call themselves advocates of the gold standard in 1896. What did they call themselves? Advocates of sound money. Why? Because they dare not declare that they advocated the gold standard, and therefore they hid behind ambiguities and euphonious phrase "sound money." And now our opponents hide behind the term expansion, and expansion does not cover it. Expansion applies to the expansion that we have had before, but this is a new kind. Heretofore we have been getting territory contiguous to us and getting it to set up and make States out of it. That is not what we are doing now. We are crossing six or seven thousand miles across the ocean and not trying to get land to settle on but land already settled. We are trying to get a people and we are going to throw the net of our government over them and hold them under it for our good, and as they say sometimes, for their good over there. I want to speak of the philanthropic act. I want to call your attention to the fact that it is not expansion; that it is imperialism. What does imperialism mean? An Empire is different from a nation. The nation sets forth the idea of a homogeneous people, speaking the same language and governed by the same laws. An Empire implies the idea of a diversity of language, a diversity of race and diversity of government, and therefore they speak of the British Empire. Why? Because in England they have one race; in India they have another. In England they say Queen of Great Britain and Empress of India, and I should protest to change the title of our executive. I do not want him called President of the United States and Emperor of the Philippine islands.

REPEAL IT.

Assemblyman Condon of this county has introduced a bill repealing the law licensing prize fighting in Nevada. The law has been on our statutes for the last two years and has been pointed at with derision by the respectable press and people of all sections of the country. It has been held up as an indication of the standard of morals in Nevada, which has never gained anything by its enactment except the odium attaching to that kind of legislation. While it is true that these exhibitions are permitted in some States where they are not sanctioned by law, it is no reason why our little commonwealth should render itself notorious as the only one legalizing that which is admitted to be brutal and demoralizing, and which is only tolerated under restrictions in a few of the large cities where the rough element has sufficient political pull to secure municipal concession and non-interference.

There has been but one exhibition of the kind in Nevada since the passage of the law, and the probability is that there never will be another whether the act is repealed or permitted to remain a blot upon our statutes, so there is nothing to be gained in a pecuniary point of view by its retention, while we can regain the respect of people abroad by undoing the disreputable work of two years ago. While the crowd attracted by the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight left a little money in Carson, by which a few persons were benefited, in the aggregate, the affair was not profitable, financially, to even the people of that city and it is quite certain that the people of the State contributed more to the gate receipts alone than was left here by the strangers who came to witness the contest.

There is no argument that can be addressed or conceived, which will justify the continuance of the law, while considerations of finance, morality, State pride and decency argue for its repeal.

The Nevada Legislature has "resoluted" upon almost everything except the polygamy question in Congress. Won't some member kindly introduce a resolution favoring the ousting or sitting (it don't matter which) of Roberts, the over-married member from Utah? The discussion would afford interesting and instructive matter for the reading public of Nevada, and what little of the civilized world there is outside our boundaries.

Twentieth Century Entertainment.

The ladies of the Twentieth Century Club entertained their gentlemen and lady friends at their hall in the new investment building, and right royally was it done. After the rendition of a literary program, in which some of our very best local talent took part, also J. Walter McKaye, who was repeatedly encored, dancing was indulged in until refreshments were announced when all repaired to the banquet hall and partook of the delicious viands which were spread before them by the charming waitresses, after which dancing was again indulged in until the hands of the clock admonished them that the Sabbath day had arrived. Reluctantly the young people, and many of the older ones who had still remained, departed, vowing with each other in their praises of the ladies of the club and the royal evening's entertainment that had been given them.

China's Reputation at Home.

Mr. John R. Allen, nephew of the late General L. A. Buckner, in speaking of "Col." Jack Chin, said he is acquainted with the Colonel and that Chin comes from a good family in Kentucky, but is a regular bull-dozer. He always carries a large knife and endeavors to make one think he is a bad man.—Silver State.

Hens That Eat Their Own Eggs.

As a rule, when hens have suitable food they don't eat their own eggs. To preserve eggs from being eaten under exceptional conditions there are a number of devices. There is, for instance, a nest with a bottom of woven wire with a mesh big enough to let an egg through. The egg goes through the thin layer of hay with which the nest is lined and through the wide meshed bottom to fall safely in a bed of hay underneath.

Another device is automatic and set in operation by the chicken itself when it steps off the nest. Thus relieved of the chicken's weight, the nest tilts up enough to roll the egg off into a place of safety made for its reception.

Chickens are commonly carried on deep water ships on long voyages to supply eggs for the captain's table and occasionally a fowl. Chickens at sea are more likely to eat their own eggs than they are ashore. To prevent this among the chickens carried on his vessel the captain of an American ship rigged a contrivance that answered the purpose and was adapted to the situation. He attached to the underside of the nest a shoote by which the egg when laid was carried safely down to a box below.—New York Sun.

Business Before Pleasure.

They were performers in the amateur theatricals. During the progress of the play at one time, while their presence was not needed on the stage, they sat together behind the scenes. She looked beautiful indeed in old fashioned gown and powdered hair, and he, in court costume of more than a century ago, was the beau ideal of a cavalier.

For some time he had been very attentive to her, and although people had frequently remarked upon his devotion, he had not come to the point of proposing, but as they sat behind the scenes he felt that an opportune moment had arrived.

"Marie," he said, "you may not have perceived my liking, but I cannot delay. I—I want to ask you to—be—"

Just then the prompter called the girl's name, but she never stirred.

"That's your cue," faltered the interrupted lover.

"Yes," she answered calmly enough, laying her hand on his arm, "but never mind the cue. You seemed very earnest just now, and I want you to go on. What were you going to say?"—Pearson's Weekly.

Washington's Farewell to His Officers.

On Dec. 4 the officers of the army met in Fraunce's tavern to bid their chief farewell. Washington, as he rose and faced them, could not control his voice. He lifted a glass of wine and said, "With a heart full of love and gratitude, I now take my leave of you, most devoutly wishing that your latter days may be as prosperous and happy as your former ones have been glorious and honorable." They drank in silence, and Washington said, "I cannot come to each of you and take my leave, but shall be obliged if you will come and take me by the hand." Up they came, one by one, and one by one Washington, his eyes filled with tears, embraced them and said farewell. From the tavern they followed him to the ferry, where he entered his barge. As the boat moved away he rose and lifted his hat. His officers returned the salute in silence, and all was over.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in Scribner's.

Happy Death.

The queen, with all her vast power, was yet very miserable—that is to say, she wasn't the least bit out or unconventional.

"But at least," the queen was often heard to exclaim, with a cheerful smile, "I can die happily, if I choose!"

By this her majesty was currently thought to make reference to the fact of her having a dress which fit so well she couldn't breathe in it.—Detroit Journal.

She Studied French.

Four young women were walking together on Charles street today and engaged in animated conversation.

"What do you think I done today, Clara?" said one. "I translated 40 pages of French exercises. Wasn't that fine?"

"Fine," said the other, "I should say it was. I wish I had done as good. I only translated 20."

Comment is unnecessary, but one feels like asking, Is this a sign of the times? Is what Mme. Entenard called "United States American English" being neglected for the so called accomplishments?

One can forgive the woman who, gazing at some renaissance lace, blandly remarks, "Ah, that is the 'Kenny-sant,'" but for the girl who assiduously studies French and murders English meanwhile, as Macbeth murdered sleep, there seems no possible excuse.—Baltimore News.

Remarks of Interest to Buyers.

It is evident by the very cold spell existing over the east, north and all along this side of the Sierras that winter is still early in season, and its prolongation may be of considerable duration. It is still necessary to clothe one's self in the warmest of clothing, especially during the prevalence of the gripe. I have therefore concluded to make unusual offers to customers in my line of winter merchandise, offering as item, one extraordinary, ladies' misses' and children's jacket; besides the great reduction already made a discount of 20 cents on the dollar on every purchase of these garments; also a discount of 10 cents on the dollar on every purchase of blankets, ladies' and children's underwear, woolhosiery and wool dress goods.

The sale will last until these goods are closed out, and as we are making strained efforts to quickly dispose of the stock, it would be advisable to at once call to make your purchases out of our still well selected assortment. S. EMRICH.

Next door to Nevada Bank.

Complimentary to Cleve.

A private letter from A. C. Cleveland, written since the Senatorial election to a friend here, speaks in the highest terms of the loyalty and active work in his behalf of both Senator Comins and Assemblyman Paul. Cleve is rapidly recovering in health and takes his defeat stoically. If it had not been for his unfortunate illness, during which for several days the doctor excluded all visitors, we believe that the result of the contest would have been vastly different. He was without doubt the most popular anti-Stewart candidate, and if the result could have been postponed a few ballots, the complimentary votes extended to other candidates would have come to him. But it is all over and all the "ifs" in the language won't change the result. Of this, at least, his friends at home are proud: No talk of sack or bull-dozing has there been to mar his campaign. — White Pine News.

The Ravages of Gripe.

That modern scourge, the Gripe, poisons the air with its fatal germs, so that no home is safe from its ravages, but multitudes have found a sure protection against this dangerous malady in Dr. King's New Discovery. When you feel a soreness in your bones and muscles, have chills and fever, with sore throat, pain in the back of the head, catarrhal symptoms and a stubborn cough you may know you have the Gripe, and that you need Dr. King's New Discovery. It will promptly cure the worst cough, heal the inflamed membranes, kill the disease germs and prevent the dreaded after effects of the malady. Price 50c. and $1.00. Money back if not cured. A trial bottle free at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

Flesh and Fowl.

A bill has been introduced cutting passenger rates on Nevada roads to 2 1/2 cents per mile. This is too low to make a profit. A uniform rate of 5 cents on all roads would be about the correct thing. — Appeal.

Is there any particular reason why the Southern Pacific should charge 5 cents a mile in Nevada and 2 1/2 cents in California? If so, is it because Nevadans can stand double fare better than Californians? Doctors charge according to the purses of their patients. Probably the Espee charges according to the patience of their patrons.

Hon. Frank S. Gedney.

In Hon. F. S. Gedney the people of Elko county have a representative in the Nevada Assembly of whom they may well feel proud. He stands out a clear figure on the dark background of corruption which has characterized the proceedings of the Legislature so far, and his terse epigrams have expressed more than hours of turbid oratory. Although a young man barely past his majority he has given evidence that he is made of the right stuff and is absolutely incorruptible. In the farcical "investigation" of the absence of Assemblyman Gillespie he took an active hand in opposition to the attempt to whitewash the whole affair and made the cynical observation that "a ten-gallon bottle of cologne should be broken at the Speaker's desk to remove the stench of the day's proceedings." Mr. Gedney is an honor to his State, to the constituency he represents and to the party which nominated him. His career is only begun and will be watched with interest. — Times-Review.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled upon my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and colds. I gave it a trial took eight bottles in all. It has cured me, and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

New Covering For Snowsheds.

Mr. McClellan, a pioneer resident of Truckee, Cal., has received permission from the Southern Pacific Company to test the efficacy of covering the sides of the sheds on the snow belt across the Sierras with wire netting in place of the heavy planking heretofore in use. Should the test result satisfactory netting will be used in place of heavy planking, thus obviating danger of fire and affording tourists an unobstructed view of the scenery in crossing the mountains.

N. C. O. Extension.

Elsewhere will be seen the reports of the extension of the N.-C.-O. railroad. It is thought that it will be extended as far north as Van Loan's place, on Madeline plains, this summer. We trust that it may. A railroad here would mean much to the country, as the rise in value of property and settlement of our country would be largely increased. — Surprise Valley Record.

A Rare Treat in Store.

W. S. B. Mathews, the eminent critic, says in the Chicago Inter-Ocean: "Miss Brown is one of the most attractive sopranos now before the public. Her voice is one of very large range and telling quality. Her repertoire contains pieces of every sort, from the brilliant arias of grand opera, dignified oratorio selections and the like, to the dainty canzonettes of Massenet, Saint Saens and Delibes, and the sprightly pieces of the English and Scotch ballad writers. Her manner is pleasing and her appearance captivating."

Miss Brown will appear before a Reno audience next Wednesday evening, and the people may expect a rare treat, for it is seldom that a singer of such note visits this section.

An Interesting Case.

All people are interested in a new case that has recently cropped up in Reno, and they have good reason for being so. This case contains many striking features. It is Mr. F. P. Dunn's show case on Virginia street, down by the iron bridge. It is very beautiful, his new window display of all that is modern in photography. There one may see large opulences small autotypes and lovely porcelains. Just think! Artistic photographs on genuine porcelain. And what do you think of this? He makes photographs on handkerchiefs—silk handkerchiefs. What more appropriate present could be imagined than one of these with your photo on it? If
